About the Study

The objective of this study is to gather important information about the funding of public park and recreation services in the State of Tennessee and make it available to persons interested in the provision of services which improve the quality of life for the citizens of the State. Individuals who should gain particular benefit from the information in this report are park and recreation department heads, park and recreation board members, and city and county officials.

As always we generate this document to be used as a planning tool, and hope that you will find the information herein to be useful administering. If you would like to have the data presented in a different format in future reports, please contact the authors. Special thanks for this report are extended to all of those professionals who took the time to fill out the questionnaires.

A final note – communities use a variety of approaches to budgeting and personnel systems. The result is an occasional need for the researcher to interpret survey forms and decide how and where to report the data. The data used in this study was from the local government's 2011 FY. If you have questions regarding the report for specific tables please do not hesitate to contact the authors.

Response Information

Response Rate for Established Parks & Recreation Departments:

Of the 148 established parks and recreation departments in Tennessee, 97 participated in this study. This resulted in a 66% response rate for communities in Tennessee currently delivering parks and recreation services. The last study conducted in 2009 was conducted only for established departments with a lower response rate of 33%. For purposes of this study, municipal/county combined departments were included in the county category.

Note: RES received responses from communities without established parks and recreation departments, but this study is regulated to established departments only. Response information from communities who offer services without an established department can be provided upon request.

Organization of Responding Departments

Report Organization

The findings of this study are reported based upon the population of the responding departments. Population estimates for the cities and counties were obtained from the data provided by the communities and the 2010 census data available on the Internet. City departments (municipalities) and Counties are grouped into the following categories:

- 1) Populations less than 1,000 individuals
- 2) Populations of 1,001 to 5,000 individuals
- 3) Populations of 5,001 to 10,000 individuals
- 4) Populations of 10,001 to 25,000 individuals
- 5) Populations of 25,001 to 50,000 individuals
- 6) Populations of over 50,001-100,000 individuals
- 7) Populations of over 100,001-200,000 individuals
- 8) Populations of over 200,000 individuals

Responses by Population

Limitation of the Study

The findings of this study have been accurately reported and should reflect a reliable representation of city and county parks and recreation departments in Tennessee. However, caution should be practiced when making interpretations. Some of these cautions are listed below.

The overall return rate of the survey was 66% for established parks and recreation departments in Tennessee, which is within the acceptable ranges for a mail out/online survey. However, had additional departments responded (with significantly different data) the budget, salary, and benefit information might have been different.

As with all surveys, the accuracy of the results is dependent upon the accuracy of the information provided by the respondents. While there is no reason to believe that responses were not honest answers there are several factors that may affect their accuracy. For example, departments describe position with essentially similar duties by using a variety of different job titles. The researchers are limited in their ability to interpret and assume similarities because of the standardized questionnaire. The same problem exists when communities follow different methods for reporting financial data and must fit their information to the form provided.

Finally, every community has different resources and needs. This report is organized to analyze and present the data according to community populations. There are a number of other ways that this information could have been analyzed and presented. Differences in departmental budgets can be the result of a number of factors other than population, which are not readily apparent through this report.

Part I: Department Organization

Type of Board & Functions

Respondents were asked the type of board authority they operate under and the functions associated.

Responses:

Advisory – 53.6%    Policy – 25.8%    Do Not Have a Board – 9.3%*    Other – 11.3%

*3 respondents requested assistance or are in the process of creating a Parks Board.

Advisory Board: 53.6% (52/97)

If you have an Advisory Board, for what is the Board responsible?

Type of Board & Functions

Policy Board: 25.8%

If you have a Policy Board, for what is the Board responsible?

Other: 11.3%

Other responses included operating directly under:

- Mayor & Board of Alderman
- City Council
