Civil War Archaeology in Tennessee

We all seem to have some connection to the American Civil War, either through family members who participated, or due to the fact that so many battles and/or skirmishes took place throughout our state. I was fortunate to have grown up in Hoover's Gap where a significant skirmish took place – the Union soldiers were equipped with the Spencer rifle – the first repeating rifle utilized in the conflict. This presentation will highlight a number of archaeological projects that have focused on Civil War sites. I encourage all to bring Civil War related items to the July meeting. See you Tuesday, Mark
